

Free local tree health training

Invitation

Observatree, the pioneering tree health citizen science project, is hosting a number of free one-day training events. These are designed to inform interested groups and individuals of current tree health concerns within their local area. Also, to introduce the tools available to help them play a part in protecting UK trees.

Training will be delivered through:

- Short presentations
- Practical indoor sessions
- External tree surveying

Training will include:

- An introduction to Observatree's training resources
- Tree identification
- An introduction to important pests and diseases in your region
- How to record and report tree pests and diseases

Suitable footwear and clothing will be required. A light lunch and refreshments will be provided.

Your nearest training sessions are:

Royal Botanic Gardens, Edinburgh, 15th June 2017

Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew, London, 11th July 2017

Spaces are limited so we can only offer up to two places for each organisation applying. These will be allocated on a first-come, first-served basis. To book, or for more information, please contact: lucy.turner@forestry.gsi.gov.uk

We welcome you to forward this invitation to other interested colleagues.

www.observatree.org.uk www.observatree.org.uk/resources

